

EDITING / PROOFREADING / INDEXING

EDITING

The touch of an experienced editor makes all the difference in the quality of a publication. Glacier can provide the appropriate level of edit to organize your manuscript, make the copy easier to read, or “jump to life,” depending on the nature of the text. A skilled editor also ensures that copy follows concise and important grammar and style conventions. Glacier editors are well-versed in Chicago, AP, and other style guides.

There are several levels or styles of editing, and Glacier has experts that can perform them all, including

- developmental editing,
- substantive editing,
- technical editing,
- copy editing,
- rights and permissions research, and
- ISBN and copyright research and procurement.

PROOFREADING

The all-important proofreader brings accuracy, consistency, and further clarity to the work. Glacier has experienced proofreaders who specialize in various topics and types of publications.

INDEXING

Glacier can create a unique index styled especially for your publication. You can either choose the words you specifically want or allow one of Glacier’s expert indexers determine the most important information to be included in the index.
